

Skip to content

<https://chatgpt.com/share/68742b5d-e52c-8003-b0d8-a85b8d87bb29#main>

This is a copy of a conversation between ChatGPT & Anonymous.

You said:

Tell me about Angell expeditions canoe trips to the Langtry Reach

ChatGPT said:

Angell Expeditions offers a Langtry Reach Rio Grande River Trip, a truly off-the-grid canoe adventure through one of the most remote stretches of the Big Bend region. Here's the lowdown:

Trip Overview

- Duration & Distance: 6 days, 5 nights, covering roughly 54 river miles
Tripadvisor+10Angell Expeditions+10Angell Expeditions+10.
- Day 1 is mostly travel—driving to a remote put-in—while paddling commences on Day 2
Angell Expeditions.
- Season: Best from mid-winter into early summer (Jan–June). While upper Rio Grande sections dry up in the dry season, the Langtry Reach remains navigable year-round, thanks to sustained flow (~300 cfs) from underground springs Angell Expeditions.

What Makes It Special

- Remote & Pristine: This stretch is seldom floated. Expect encounters with wildlife, cattle, ranchers, or migrating birds—but few, if any, other paddlers Angell Expeditions.
- Stunning Scenery: Rugged canyons carved by the Rio Grande, towering limestone walls, and the unique ecology of Big Bend.
- Wilderness Feel: Satellite comms are carried, but evacuation is self-reliant—meaning you must be prepared for any scenario deep in the backcountry .

Experience & Safety Requirements

- Skill Level: Strong paddling skills required—expect rapids, wind, and river challenges. Angell stresses that if external support or rescue mindset is needed, this trip isn't a good fit .

- Self-sufficiency: You need to be adept at managing gear or medical issues without outside help. Satellite gear is there, but rescue is unlikely; evacuation would rely on finishing the trip .
-

Costs & Logistics

- Price: ≈ $1,400 per person (6 days/5 nights) with a two-person minimum Angell Expeditions.
 - Inclusions: Canoe/kayak/raft, camping gear (tents, pads, sleeping bags available for extra fee), gear, food, shuttle, guide.
 - Gratuities: 15–20% typical for guides; group discounts apply Angell Expeditions.
 - Planning: Meeting locations and logistics are flexible; remote area means cell coverage is spotty—coordination is via email or phone beforehand .
-

What Others Say

- Canoe trips in the Big Bend—including this lower canyon/Langtry Reach stretch—have been praised as “rarely visited” with technical water to challenge paddlers YouTube.
 - Angell’s guides are described as professional, knowledgeable, and efficient, with guests eager to return Tripadvisor.
-

Is It Right for You?

Choose this trip if you:

- Want a true wilderness canoe experience.
- Are comfortable with multi-day paddling and backcountry logistics.
- Can handle self-support in remote conditions, including basic equipment troubleshooting and first aid.
- Are drawn to solitude, rugged landscapes, and the thrill of exploration.

If you're newer to paddling or prefer less challenging terrain, Angell also offers milder options like Boquillas Canyon or Santa Elena Canyon Angell Expeditions+8Angell Expeditions+8Angell Expeditions+8.

Next Steps

1. Contact Angell Expeditions to check trip availability and current permits.
 2. Discuss your paddling experience to ensure it's a good match.
 3. Plan logistics: meeting point, meals, gear rental, vehicle shuttles.
 4. Prepare for a large tip (15–20%) and possibly gear rental fees.
-

Let me know if you'd like help with gear recommendations, similar trips, or planning tips!

ChatGPT can make mistakes. Check important info.